One stop shop for relevant Extension materials – sorted and peer reviewed. Where to post items such as the beef needs assessment, so there is consistent messaging to stakeholders. How to distribute 3 – 4 page report, or an informational paper, so it is easily available. DARE uses their web site but it may be difficult to find. ABM posts informational papers. This will require conversation with departments and colleges – do we need a system for putting information to the public with adequate comfort/access level.

Move to February agenda. Please see pages 4 & 5 from Joanne.

- Who? Joanne and Ruth and some PLT representatives plus colleges or departments (CAS – this question goes to Gene Kelley and have a proposal prepared).

November 2017

Hello from Joanne 2/8/2018

There are many ways to feature reports, newsletters, feature stories, publications and fact sheets on the CSU Extension website.

At the bottom of the page, we have delineated a section for specific target audiences. If you have ideas for more, please contact Joanne and Ruth. Here's a screen capture of that section:

The middle section of the main page is where we feature new and topical information; this is changed on a regular basis. If you have submission ideas, including the link to another resource, please send them to Joanne and Ruth. Here's a screen capture of that section:

The 'Publication' tab in the top banner of Extension sites links to fact sheets and other publications available. These are peer-reviewed publications that Extension agent and specialist authors update. They are sent periodic review notices from our online manuscript review system, and we try to update your corrections or additions in a timely manner. The review period is set by the author, at the initial or review stage.

The 'News' tab in the top banner links to the Extension 'Source' portal, where feature stories that I develop from stories you generate are posted. I work with college communicators and CSU public relations to ensure the best placement for these stories takes place.

Ruth and I would be happy to meet with the individual college webmasters to investigate their and other strategies to promote the work being done on behalf of Extension, online.

Please let Joanne and Ruth know if you have additional questions.
